

Exercise

(Homework, lesson 14)

Here is the beginning of a story. How might it continue?

Complete the story (for example, consider the mother's thoughts, the son's reaction, comments of the colleagues, etc.).

Objective

I appreciate what my parents have done for me; I am very grateful to them for this. I respect them and heed their advice.

Contents

The relationship with parents.

Mutual trust.

The parents' advice.

The generation gap – mutual understanding.

Speaking with one another.

The Fourth Commandment.

CNAC-QA 322-326

The Fourth Commandment

Honour your father and your mother that your days may be long upon the land which the Lord your God is giving you.

The main points:

I also want to ...

Homework

Parents and children

Early on in life a boy lost his father. Now his mother had to earn money because they only received a small pension. She therefore washed and cleaned for other people. With it she managed to support her son. He was even able to go to university. His mother never grew tired of working for him. And one day he had made it: he had become a doctor.

When he took up his first job he invited his new colleagues to celebrate as was customary there.

He had gotten a room ready on the lower level of the hospital. His mother, who had grown old by now, helped him to serve his guests. In an adjoining room she prepared a snack, then washed the dishes, and even served the refreshments. Afterwards she came to join the guests.

One of the guests said: "Why don't you send the waitress home now. We can serve ourselves."

The mother got up ...

... make my parents happy!

Learn the Fourth Commandment by heart.